Drug Center at Fort Ord

A policy of amnesty for drug users was announced by Major General Phillip B. Davidson, Jr., Ft. Ord's commanding general. He also outlined a new program for handling some of the problems of drug use and abuse at Ft. Ord.

A principal feature of the new program at Ft. Ord is the Drug Center scheduled to open January 4 in Building 2864 on D Street near 13th Street.

Any serviceman or woman seeking rehabilitation for drug abuse or addiction who voluntarily presents himself as a drug user to his commanding officer, surgeon, chaplain or authorized staff member of the Drug Center will not be hurt merely for admitting to the use of drugs. Amnesty will be granted for past personal drug use providing this use has not already been brought to the attention of the command.

This amnesty will not necessarily be extended to other prohibited acts associated with drug use either before or after he seeks assistance. The fact that an individual has visited the Drug Center and any information that he has relayed to members of its staff will be treated as confidential.

The Drug Center will serve those who desire help to restore themselves or to aid others in rehabilitation. Persons who wish to understand the consequences of drug use and those whose duty it is to prevent or eliminate drug abuse may consult the staff at the Drug Center for authoritative information on drugs and their effects.

Staff members will be on duty at all hours, day and night If a person seeking help cannot make it to the center, he can dial DRUG (3784) to get assistance, information or just a willing listener. Taxi service will be available to bring a caller to the center if necessary.

The staff at present consists of three officers and four enlisted men who are assigned full-time to center activities. All are specially qualified for the work. Volunteers and part-time workers, expert in the field of drug abuse correction, will be involved in the program

Call For Bids

The California Division of Highways is calling for bids on safety improvement projects on two State routes in Monterey County.

A Monterey County project consists of realigning 0.4-mile of Route 1 at a location approximately four miles north of Lucia. Realignment limits run from 0.8-mile south and 0.4-mile south of Big Creek Bridge.

Work will consist of flattening slopes, constructing drainage facilities and also constructing reinforced concrete crib walls to replace existing timber cribbing.

A total of $300,000 is available for the project.

A second Monterey County project calls for installation of water pressure tanks at both the northbound and southbound safety roadside rests located on Route 101 near Camp Roberts.

The tanks will be automatically controlled. Their installation will insure an adequate water supply at both locations.

A total of $15,00 is available for the project. Bids will be opened January 13 in Sacramento.

Community School Program

By Pearl Carey

Let me preface my remarks by saying that it was not my intent to eliminate jobs or job opportunities for residents of the Seaside community. I promised the citizens of Seaside, during my campaign, to improve recreation in this city and I intend to keep that promise.

Recently, I have been accused of abolishing jobs in recreation for four black males and one white male who are presently employed in the Community Schools Program. This is not true, I have asked the City Council to improve the quality of the program and in doing so it was necessary to make some changes. Please permit me to discuss the present structure of the program and the proposed changes.

Community School Program structure in Seaside.--Four community schools leaders are employed in the City of Seaside. Seaside gives the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District $28,000 to provide a recreation program for the City of Seaside. This $28 thousand employs four people who are assigned to:

Del Rey Woods School $7,824
Seaside High School--$7,440
Ord Terrace School--$6,768
Highland Elem. Sch.--$6,432
King Jr., High Sch.--$7,824.

These people work eight hours per day; however, the hours which they work depend largely on the school's program and the principal. For example, one community school leader comes to work at 11 a.m. each day so that he can assist the principal and teachers of that school with cafeteria or playground duty. He works until 5 p.m., during which time he provides physical education instruction for students. The after-school activities usually consist of team sports for boys. There are very few activities at night; however, competitive team sports may be scheduled for some Saturdays. A similar program is conducted at the other elementary schools.

The high school and junior high school programs are different. League play is provided at the high school level. However, the community schools leader is more involved in the school's athletic program. The King Junior High School program consists of opening the gym at night. Sox Hops were held last year, but they were eliminated due to student misbehavior. Saturday activities are held sporadically. Once again no activities for girls.

The concept which I have developed of the community schools program is that we are spending the money for a sports program, which is characterized by the following:

*Lacks comprehension in program structure
*Discriminates against females in employment as well as in participation. (There are no females working in the program)
*Employs personnel, but provides little or no money in the budget for programs.
*It discriminates against whites as the majority of the children participating in the after-school programs are black
*Lack of involvement of pre-school children and adults.
(NOTE: Monterey Recreation programs have pre-school programs and programs for young adults.)
*Lacks cultural activities and special projects (such as Christmas tree lighting ceremony and gifts for needy children who participate in the program)
*Lacks activities for primary children (ages 5 - 8 yrs.) (The programs sponsored by community school leaders are designed to meet the needs of intermediate children (9 to 11 yrs.)
*The community schools program is segregated, as only the children attending the school where the community school leader is assigned can participate in that school's program
*Lacks a realistic salary schedule. (The community school leaders earn from $6,432 to $7,824)
*Fails to coordinate the community schools program with other programs such as E.S.E.A., Anti-Poverty, Operation Shoestring, and Young Adults for Action
*Lacks special programs such as Pop Warner Football, which is presently being implemented by the Young Adults for Action
*Lacks adult involvement and a recreation advisory board so that the community will have some in-put in program development and design
*Lacks specific recreational objectives for recreation programs in Seaside.
*Lacks accountability. (There is one community school leader who attends school full time at the University of California, Santa Cruz and earns $7,824. Prior to this year another student earned a similar salary and attended the University full time. I am in favor of encouraging these young men to return to college to obtain an education, but I feel that if we are going to pay this kind of salary, they should be held accountable for a functional program at their respective schools)
*No field trips are budgeted for children participating in the program.

A. E. 'Andy' Barragan, Publisher

Christmas day is the day of the birth of the Christ Child in Bethlehem. The celebration of this holy day is mostly reserved for the children and it is to the hope of our salvation, the children, that I turn over this week's column. The future leaders of our community and nation wrote these beautiful words about Christmas and other subjects.

SEASIDE HIGH SCHOOL COLUMN

It seems that like everything else, this column is beginning to slowly come to an end. The newness of it has worn off and no longer do we (the students) seem eager to write an article. With hope that the Christmas vacation will give our tired minds a rest, be prepared next year for new and fresh ideas to be expressed and maybe a better angle on the situations facing us and the rest of the world.

So, on behalf of my fellow students, I wish to thank the POST for publishing our articles and we hope that we have given you a little light on the thinking minds of today's young people.

And while you're thinking of toasts to give this new year give one for a better New Year.

Merry Christmas!

Job Safety Pays Off for PG&E Workers

On-the-job safety has paid dividends again for Pacific Gas and Electric Company's 981 Coast Valleys Division employees.

The employees, serving the energy needs of company customers in Monterey, San Benito, San Luis Obispo and northern Santa Barbara counties, have worked one million manhours without a lost time accident.

Their accomplishment has earned them a company accident prevention award, their 30th since 1959.

Division Manager W. L. (Bill) Murray accepted the citation on behalf of the employees from Charles H. Sedam, vice president - general construction and a member of PG&E's central safety committee. Murray noted that the employees had worked from April 6 through October 10, without so much as a sprained ankle that required a day off.

"This is a great accomplishment," said Sedam. "The safety record of our Coast Valleys employees shows that they have put a lot of thought and training behind every job they have performed. On-the-job accidents can be prevented. They proved that. Now the task is to earn another safe million-manhour award."

The award was presented at a safety meeting held recently at company offices at 356 East Alisal, Salinas.

ALLOWANCES

260 Graduate From NPS

About 260 officers graduated from the Naval Postgraduate School on December 11 in King Hall.

Rear Admiral David H. Bagley, assistant chief of naval personnel for personal affairs spoke to the graduates, their families and friends. His topic covered recent messages from the Chief of Naval Operations to individualize the Navy and how these relate to an all volunteer force.

School Superintendent Rear Admiral Robert W. McNitt conferred the degrees, assisted by Dr. Milton U. Clauser, academic dean.

Help For Students Is Offered

About this time each year, many junior and senior high school students contact the Heart Association and other health agencies, for advice about sources of material for term papers, science reports and similar projects.

Heinz Hubler, Community Services Director of Monterey Peninsula College and also a member of the Public Education Committee of the Central Mission Trails Heart Association says that the local office of the Heart group has reading lists and other suitable material which can be provided to aid students.

It makes it easier, he pointed out, if the student will ask for material on some specific aspect of the heart problem, rather than "send me everything you have on the heart."

He said that the national office of the Heart agency has recently compiled a selected reading list on heart topics for junior and senior high school students. The list will be duplicated locally and sent to anyone requesting it.

Write to the Central Mission Trails Heart Association, 541-A South Main Street, Salinas, California, 93901.

SEASIDE CITIZENS WHY THE RECALL?

For years the Haddad group ran Seaside without threat of recall. The people had the power, but knew that a recall would divide the city. Now when the loyal opposition is in power the Haddad group wants to recall them.

The present council who were on the outside for years kept themselves out of any recall threats to the city council. They had the issues with Laguna Grande and the Library.

Our four Councilmen defeated their opponents in an honest election and should be allowed time to prove themselves.

Seaside does not need a recall. You the citizens will have to pay for the mayor's inability to give leadership to the council.

Here are some of the results of a recall:

1. People will be asked to choose sides and will be held legally responsible for things they say.
2. Merchants will be asked to agree or disagree and to become involved and run the risk of a customer boycott.
3. The City will not make any progress during the six months of recall.
4. The only one who will benefit is Haddad. He has all to gain and nothing to lose.

Why does Haddad have our city subjected to the most destructive political move—the recall?

It seems to be a move to gain personal political power.

Fellow citizens for the good of the City of Seaside, its businessmen, its treasury, for all of us, reject the recall. The proposed recall would occur less than twelve months before the next elections. Avoid the degradation, disruption and division that has not healed since the 1959 recall.

Spots Easy to Remove From Vinyl Tile

One reason vinyl asbestos tile is popular in kitchens, entrys and halls is because it is so easy to keep clean. Fast action with a damp cloth or sponge and spills disappear. But sometimes a housewife simply hasn't time to mop up and spots or stains "set."

The following methods for removing stains and dried spillage have been approved by the Better Floors Council, which recommends vinyl asbestos tile as the most serviceable flooring for homes.

Acids: first wash the area with mild detergent and rinse or rub with fine steel wool dipped in detergent and rinse. Second, wash with a cloth dipped in a diluted solution of baking soda. Rinse.

Alkali, lye, drain cleaner, strong soap: first wash with a mild detergent or rub with fine steel wool dampened in a detergent and rinse. Second wash the area with a diluted solution vinegar. Rinse.

Candle Wax: carefully scrape off as much as you can and finish the job with floor-mark-remover pads.

Cigarette burns, rust stains, mildew, dye, blood, grass: rub with fine steel wool dipped in mild detergent. Rinse.

Coffee, alcoholic beverages, fruit juice, ink, iodine, Mercurochrome: wash with detergent or rub lightly with a cloth dipped in diluted chlorine bleach. Rinse.

Mustard and ketchup: carefully scrape off as much as possible; then wash the spot with detergent. Rinse.

Nail-polish, lacquer, paint, varnish, shellac, chewing-gum: scrape away as much as you can. Wash with detergent or rub with fine steel wool dampened in detergent. Rinse.

Rubber heel marks, tar or asphalt, grease, oil: Clean with floor-mark remover pads or rub with fine steel wool dampened in detergent and rinse.

Shoe polish: Use a floor-mark-remover pad or rub with fine steel wool dampened in detergent and rinse.

Harbor Is Reimbursed

State Senator Donald L. Grunsky and Assemblyman Frank Murphy, Jr., Santa Cruz County legislators on December 10 presented the Santa Cruz Harbor District with a check for $125,000 as reimbursement for acquisition of land needed to develop Upper Santa Cruz Harbor Project.

Grunsky indicated that the successful passage of Proposition 7 on the June ballot and the subsequent sale of bonds made the presentation possible

"I am particularly pleased," Grunsky said, "to make this presentation in that, to the best of our knowledge, it is the first time a direct reimbursement has been made to a port district. Normally such presentations are made only to boards of supervisors for park and recreation districts."

Murphy added that the funds for the Project were originally authorized under the Cameron–Unruh 1964 State Beach, Park, Recreational and Historical Facilities Fund Act.

The presentation was made at the Port Harbor with Sam Leask and Lee Harris representing the Harbor Board of Directors.

Poll Shows Drivers Are Uninformed

Most of California's eleven million licensed drivers do not know the laws governing driving-under-the-influence of alcohol, according to a California Traffic Safety Foundation poll released recently.

The poll was conducted for the foundation by the Field Research Corporation utilizing a scientifically selected sample of California Drivers.

It is the opening step of a year-long public information program designed to acquaint drivers with California's drunk driving laws, according to Royal A. Neilson, Foundation assistant manager, who is acting as project director.

"Drunk driving laws are among the most stringent to be found in the Vehicle Code and the lack of public knowledge reflected in the poll is strong evidence of the need for a concentrated program of public education," Neilson said.

Interviewers asked a cross section of drivers the following question: "If a person is arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol, must he submit to a chemical test to determine his blood alcohol level or can he refuse to take such a test?"

Responses were:

Must submit to test ... 50 percent
Can refuse ..... 44 percent
Don't know ..... 6 percent.

Those who knew they had the right of refusal and those answering "don't know" were asked: "If he refuses to take the test, which one of the following things is most likely to happen?"

Response were:

1. "He will go free, but will have to appear later in court to answer a drunk driving charge." ... 24 percent.
2. "His driver's license is automatically revoked for good." ... 2 percent.
3. "His driver's license is automatically suspended for 6 months regardless of the outcome of his drunk driving charge." ... 20 percent.
4. "His driver's license will be suspended pending the outcome of his drunk driving charge -- if he is found guilty, it will be suspended for six months, otherwise not." ... 43 percent.
5. "Don't know." ... 11 percent.

These questions go to the heart of California's "implied consent' law," Neilson said. "When the legislature passed this law in 1966, it said that an arrested person could refuse to take a chemical test for alcohol; but upon refusal his license would be suspended automatically for six months regardless of the outcome of his drunk driving charge." Only 10 percent of California drivers know what the result of refusal means.

Of those who know they can refuse, 43 percent think that the driver's license will be suspended if he is found guilty of the drunk driving charge -- otherwise not. This is a most important finding according to Neilson.

"It means that a large group of people have the misguided belief that suspensions under the implied consent law have something to do with the outcome of the drunk driving charge," Neilson said. "Nothing could be further from the truth. Drivers must be taught that if they refuse to take a chemical test when lawfully arrested, they will be suspended for six months whether they are guilty of drunk-driving or not. This suspension is automatic because they refused the test -- not because they were drunk."

"If he submits to the test and is subsequently found guilty of driving-under-the-influence of alcohol, the driver will probably not lose his license for the first offense. Usually the best advice is to take the test if one wants to protect his license," Neilson said. "The law is quite explicit for refusals."

The year long program designed by California Traffic Safety Foundation is under contract with the Office of Traffic Safety -- part of the Business and Transportation Agency, State of California. The drinking driver accounts for more than half of the adult fatalities in California crashes each year.

Talcott Calls For OEO Reforms

Congressman Burt Talcott has expressed deep concern over the chain of events that have been disclosed by the investigations of the Santa Cruz OEO area service center by the California Department of Human Resources and the County Board of Supervisors.

In a letter to the County Board of Supervisors, Congressman Talcott urged the Board to assume tighter control and to reasses the structure of the County EOC with a view to revising programs and establishing stricter oversight machinery.

In his letter to the Supervisors, Talcott pointed out that the Congress adopted the Green Amendment when the authorizing legislation for the Economic Opportunity Act was amended in 1967. The intent of this amendment was to permit a State or municipal subdivision of a State to assume responsibility for the proper operation of the Community Action programs.

Talcott said the number of complaints of mismanagement of local EOC programs is growing. The complaints are not confined to any section of the country and are reaching all Members of the Congress.

Seaside Ripples

and decorated streets. The time has come again for busy storekeepers to open their doors for the Christmas Parade. A line of artificial trees, toys, lights, candy canes, turkeys, etc...

Under all the hustle and bustle of the Christmas season there is a real meaning of Christmas. But where under all the food, the gifts, the fake trees is it? Every year Christmas is more and more commercialized. Little by little the meaning of Christmas is forgotten.

I often wonder about what I believe Christmas is about. Looking back into time I see Christmas with all the trimmings and joyfulness, the gifts, the tree, the people, the turkey. But the meaning of Christmas showed through all this glory and happiness. I've always associated the Christmas season with a peaceful serenity. Sitting under the clock on many Christmas Eves, I've thought how wonderful and peaceful the world is.

This 1970 Christmas, my ideals are quite different. I no longer see the world as a smiling man, but as it is. My ideal of a Christmas season in a peaceful and quiet serenity is no longer a reality--maybe it never was.

Christmas Expressed

The date was December 16; time 7:30 p.m.; place, boys' gym, Seaside High School. The well-known choir and band put on another Christmas performance free of charge to the public.

Mr. Sheere, choir conductor, led the fine voices through several Christmas carols including "We Wish You a Merry Christmas" sung in Japanese, German, Hawaiian and Polish.

The show closed with Mr. Sheere leading the whole gym-full audience in "Silent Night." Everyone went home with a great "spirit" of Christmas.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

Once again it's Christmas time and all the stores are raking in the money on all the motorized gifts! It seems that the whole world is made out of plastic and is motorized! Every year Christmas gets more and more commercial. The true spirit of Christmas went out with Indian-head pennies!

But it's not just the spirit of Christmas that has gone out. America has forgotten why we even celebrate this time of year. To the stores, it's make a pile of money! To the kids, it's get a pile of toys! To the parents, it's get a pile of bills!! The reason we celebrate Christmas, anyway, is because that was the day Christ was born. The savior, Christ! He was born to save the world from their sins, but the world has started all over. When will America stop placing so much value on money and material items? Only GOD knows and, then again, maybe he doesn't!!

CHRISTMAS COMMERCIALIZATION

How do you decide what kind of presents you'll give your family, friends, and relatives? By the price? By the looks? If it is in style at the time? Is the current number one item on the market a twenty dollar perfume that comes in a clock-shpaed bottle, imported from France?

Years ago, when our parents were children, for Christmas they received a candy cane, orange and maybe a pair of hand-knitted mittens or slippers, which their mother worked on in front of the fireplace.

Did Christmas mean any less to them than to us? Nowadays, the children write Santa a letter filled with things they want for Christmas--a 10-mile-long slot car set, a walking, talking, crying, eating, roller skating, jump roping, three-foot tall doll.

Somewhere along the way I feel the true meaning of Christmas was lost. Somewhere through the years, people seem to have forgotten that Christmas is Christ's birthday. The children are told that Christmas is the night that Santa Claus and his flying reindeer come and little significance is placed on Christ being born in a manger.

Perhaps if people thought more about Peace on Earth, Good Will Towards Men, instead of what gifts and presents are under the Christmas tree, this world would be a better place.

THE CLOSING OF 1970

Wonder what's happening? Well, it's the close of another great year for many. All should be thankful that we made it through the year. The football team of Seaside High School did a great job in trying for number one and the school spirit was never so great. Fashions have changed a great deal through the year, along with the people. The youth of America are expressing their views instead of hiding behind closed doors as they use to. Almost everyone is learning how to accept his brothers and sisters as individuals.

All of us are learning to understand what's really happening in the world today. The year 1971 will be another great year and maybe a little easier to understand since we did almost everything we wanted to do. All that's left for us to do is to prove that whatever we may say will be proven correct.

Thank you, good colleagues at Seaside High, for your fine contribution to our community and to all a very Merry Christmas from the staff at the POST.

Letter to the Editor

Editor: Another recall in Seaside would be tragic, divide our city into two camps, confuse the issues and cost the taxpayer more money.

"If you're not on my side, then you must be against me" is a favorite cry of those engaged in cheap political tricks. Politicians do not have the moral right to ask us to do that and the people of Seaside should not let themselves be stampeded into dignifying political squabbles by signing petitions. We are being asked to take part in, and lend substance to, a petty personal power play and we should stop this shameful display of pettiness by exercising our right by refusing to have anything to do with any petition.

What do we really want? Quiet, decorous one man rule or noisy democracy in action! We are being asked to believe that simply because the mayor is on the short end of the newly elected council vote, the other members must be wrong and, therefore, must be recalled. Further, we are led to believe that the longer an individual serves on a board or commission the more reason for reappointment by virtue of experience. This attitude is born of naivety and is irrational in concept.

We have every right in the world to demand that our council, mayor included, get back to the crucial business of performing the task for which they were elected.

Signed,
A committee of one for a return to sanity.

Who Cares

By Mel Vercoe

The poor guy must have been chilled to the bone - sitting there on the wet beach sand muttering to himself, with nothing to shield him from the cold winter wind, but a light jacket and an empty wine jug. He turned his head and smiled when I spoke to him and he tried to say something, but the words were lost in the wind and the wine jug. At about age forty his future was tragically clear- a succession of wine jugs on a series of wet and cold lonely beaches until life finally sees no particular reason to fight the battle.

His wine jug was a beautiful green in color. It could have been black or dirty brown or purple, but it was green, because green is prettier on a store shelf than either black or dirty brown or purple, and it was important to somebody that it look attractive because the company that sold it to the store where the wino bought it was in business to make money, not to keep people from buying wine.

As I looked at this man chopping twenty years from his normal life span, I thought about a news broadcast I had just heard. Some police chief or mayor somplace had talked about heroin pushers-that the law should hit them harder- a philosophy I agree with one hundred percent, except that I believe the death penalty should be mandatory for pushers, not just a jail term.

A pusher promotes a product that he knows will result in death and suffering for its buyers. He advertises in his own way; he sells the product and he supplies the product. We condemn him for being a menace to our society, which he is.

Alcoholism is the number four public health problem in the United States. Beacuse so many of the deaths from alcohol use are written off as respiratory failure or complications of the liver, heart, circulation and brain problems or are listed among the 25,000 automobile accident deaths due to drunken driving, to name a few, it is impossible to even estimate the human life cost of the use of alcohol in the United States.

Yet this produce is advertised, pushed by every sly menas imaginable and glamorized by every communication media available. Why?

Why does our society find it acceptable practice to virtually teach our children to drink by example right in our own homes, just as we teach them to smoke cancer-causing cigarettes, while at the same time we condemn dope pushers?

HELPS THE BLIND

Block Tax Increase Says Chamber Head

"The California Chamber of Commerce is strongly opposed to increasing taxes or imposing new taxes in order to solve the current $140 million budgetary gap between revenues and expenditures," Ernest J. Loebbecke, President of the State Chamber of Commerce, stated recently.

"The Chamber supports the Governor in his attempts to cut sate expenditures to the bone," reported Loebbecke.

The Chamber's reports indicate that, due to the downward trend in state revenues occasioned by economic conditions and the upward trend in welfare and Medi-Cal and other expenditures, the state finds itself in a serious fiscal condition.

"Welfare and Medi-Cal expenditures have been increasing at a faster rate than the revenues of the state, population growth, personal income or any other measure of the state's ability to pay. It is necessary that these expenditures be brought under control," Loebbecke said.

"Local property taxes have again increased and tax reform to provide some relief in future years should have a high priority.

"The business interests and the people of California are already beset by runaway inflation. They are struggling with state and local tax payments. They are wholeheartedly opposed to further tax impositions," Loebbecke remarked.

"A tax increase to reduce or eliminate the existing general fund deficit would not be a practical solution with the present sluggish economy - it would only compound the problem.

"If there ever was a time for economy in government, it is now," stated Loebbecke. He observed that the California Chamber is strongly in support of vital state services being allowed to function and complimented the Governor and his administration on economies made over the last few years and he believes that "in every office, every bureau, every department of state government," belt-tightening should be continued.

"Facing a half-billion dollar General Fund budget deficiency as of next July 1," reiterated Loebbecke, "we support the Administration's attempts to hold the line. We urge all citizens and civic organizations throughout the state to do likewise."

Prints Are Displayed

Japanese woodblock prints (ukiyo-e hanga) from the exlate architect, Frank Lloyd Wright, will be seen at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, 559 Pacific Street, Monterey, through the 31st. This exhibit was organized by the Western Association of Art.

Woodblock prints, or hanga, go back to the 12th century in Japanese history. The ukiyo-e printmakers of the 18th and 19th centuries made this inexpensive form of art popular with the common people by depicting scenes of everyday life--portraits of popular contemporary actors, beautiful women, familiar landscapes. The word ukiyo-e literally means pictures of the transient world, referring to the Buddhist belief that man's time on earth is but a temporary stage along the road to salvation.

Wright was one of the most important collectors of ukiyo-e hanga and was one of the first to bring them to America. He started collecting avidly in 1897.

The Emperor of Japan's gifts enriched his collection which, by 1924, was particularly strong in the landscape prints of Katsushika Hokusai and Ando Hiroshige.

Hokusai's views of Mt. Fugi are favorites with foreign collectors. Hiroshige's views of the Tokaido and Edo (now the city of Tokyo) and especially his masterpieces, the 53 posting stations of the Tokaido Road, are also well known.

Popular contemporary actors were a favorite subject of printmakers Shunsho, Toyokuni and Shunyei.

Artists Shunko, Eishi and Utamaro used women as the subject matter for their prints.

Kitagawa Utamaro, in particular, has been acclaimed for his animated portrayals of beautiful women, most often of the Yoshiwara district.

The Museum is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday; from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays; it is closed on Mondays and holidays. There is no admission charge.

Grooving Around the Peninsula

with Betty Mann

Merry Christmas, dear readers--friends and foes. Here's hoping that this very special holiday season shall fulfill all of your greatest expectations and desires.

This column will be short and sweet since I am taking a two week Christmas vacation (smile!).

The following poem is dedicated to our fair city of Seaside, which seems to be in a bit of turmoil as of late.

"OH LITTLE TOWN"

Trees are glowing softly in the dawn
Behind the windows of the sleeping town,
And pale against the new day coming on,
A few late loitering star's stay looking down.
Oh little town you sleep so quietly
While stars of wonder pale.
Do you not know of some who slept and some who still may be
While kings and wise men come and go?
All those who wake and breathe this Christmas air--
For all the little towns of earth...
Oh, say a prayer.

Wishing each of you a Merry Christmas and a prosperous New Year.

Betty

Many Fines Are Paid

November was a busy month for wardens in the central coastal region, the Department of Fish and Game reported recently.

The DFG says 236 persons were cited in the 13-county area for offenses ranging from carrying a loaded gun in a car to fishing with too many rods. They paid a total of $9,633 in fines.

Heading the list of offenses was fishing without a license, 73 cases; trespassing on private property, 30 cases and fishing in inland waters with more than one rod, 27 cases.

Twenty-one persons were cited for having a loaded firearm in a motor vehicle and there were 18 convictions for illegal deer hunting.

One half of fines for fish and game violations remains in the county where the case was tried and the other half goes to the Department of Fish and Game.

Fee Will Be Charged

Motorists who have had their drivers' licenses suspended or revoked under mandatory provisions of law must pay a $5 reinstatement fee before they can drive again. The charge provides for the operational costs of the reinstatement process.

The fee is in addition to any other requirement for reinstatement of a suspended or revoked driver's license, said Director of Motor Vehicles Robert C. Cozens.

He added that 118,000 California motorists who are under mandatory suspensions or revocations of various durations will be mailed letters telling them that advance payment of $5 will be a condition of license reinstatement.

The fee requirement was enacted by the 1970 State Legislature. It applies only to actions required by law and not to those taken under the discretionary authority of the Department of Motor Vehicles, Cozens said. In some cases a judge may invoke a suspension or revocation; in other cases DMV does so.

Nearly 79,000 drivers had their licenses suspended last year when they were unable to produce evidence of insurance or ability to pay damages following auto crashes.

Safe Winter Driving Is Hard Work

Winter is not the favorite season of drivers, whose skills can become taxed to the limit by the increase in hazardous conditions.

It stands to reason that you need a car that can endure the harsh elements of winter. Wiper blades, defroster, brakes, tires, and other safety items all must work efficiently. Otherwise you place your life in grave danger.

Usless you winterize your car to make it safe, points out the National Automobile Club, all the driving skills in the world probably can't help you.

Before coming to those skills, consider the folly of trying to be a "peephole pilot" with perhaps one of the dirtiest windshields in town. Squint your eyes to peek through dirt smudges here, smears there and you soon can drive blindly into a accident. Clean that windshield every time you're about to hit the road.

Now you do take to the road and the winter conditions start putting your skills to a test. First you get the "feel" of the road by accelerating carefully to find out if wheels spin and braking gently to find out if they skid. Then you adjust your speed accordingly.

Fully aware that slowing down makes you less vulnerable to a bad-weather accident, you even go almost at a snail's pace whenever necessary on turns, at intersections and on crests of hills. All along the way, you keep an extra sharp eye out for pedestrians and cars. If need be, you also turn on your low beams.

To ward off the threat of a rear-end collision, always greater in rain or fog, you increase your following distance. This gives you that much-needed safety cushion during your stops.

If you do all of a sudden have to stop, you don't slam on the brakes but "pump" them to keep the wheels rolling, to keep traction and steering control.

Despite your precautions, you still go into a skid this time. Youforce yourself not to panic and employ the special skill required to correct the skid. Above all, you avoid hitting the brakes.

As your car's rear end slides, you immediately take your foot off the gas. You turn your wheels in the same direction the rear of your car is skidding. You take pains not to oversteer. As soon as your car regains rolling traction you straighten your wheels.

California Has Most

California maintained its lead as the state with the largest number of veterans--2,992 000-- according to the Veterans Administration's latest estimate on U.S. veterans' population.

The figures are compiled annually, based on census figures and VA data, as a basis for planning services to veterans.

New York was second to California with 2 553,000 veterans, followed by Pennsylvanis with 1,785,000; Illinois, with 1,576 000 and Texas, with 1,370,000.

The VA said Alaska has the smallest number of veterans- 30,000. Wyoming with 53,000, has the least among the contiguous states.

Total U.S. veteran population reached 4,173,000 veterans of the Vietnam Era.

Vietnam Era veterans are still heavily outnumbered by the 14,458 000 World War II veterans, but their numbers are closing the gap on the total for those who had military service during the Korean Conflict- 5,867,000.

About 1,536,000 World War I veterans are living today. With an average age of 75.7 years they are still "youngsters" compared to the 5 000 Spanish-American War veterans whose average age is 91.2 years.

The largest block of veterans, those who served in World War II, average 50.7 in age; Vietnam Era veterans are 26.7 years old, on the average. Some 24,000 are under 20 and 1,674,000 are under 25.

Energy Demand Causes Record PG&E Budget

Pacific Gas and Electric Company will spend an estimated $470 million on new construction in 1971 and a total of nearly $2 billion in the four years through 1974, to stay ahead of energy needs in Northern and Central California, PG&E president Shermer L. Sibley announced recently.

Next year's construction expenditures compare with $405 million this year, itself a new high annual construction expenditure for the company.

"Our construction schedule is designed to meet new load requirements and maintain energy reserves adequate for reliable service without 'brown-outs'. The schedule is based on long-range load analyses which show continuing annual growth in the electric demand we must serve," Sibley said.

"Because we have been successful to date in building ahead of the area's requirements, PG&E customers have received ample gas and electricity for their needs. They have not been faced with the inconvenience and incalculable economic cost of power shortages, leading to widespread power interruptions or voltage reductions during peak load periods," Sibley said.

"Our customers can continue to be assured of ample energy resources and reliable service for 1971 and as long thereafter as we are permitted to build ahead of their needs. This requires the expansion of our facilities as programmed.

"Financing approximately $2 billion in expansion expenditures in the next four years to maintain this position will be a challenging task. For PG&E to obtain the required new capital at reasonable cost the company must be able to maintain its rates and earnings at a reasonable level.

Sibley pointed out that additional supplies of electricity and gas are necessary for protection and enhancement of the enviroment, such as sewage treatment, the Bay Area Rapid Transit, recycling waste products and minimizing air and water pollution.

PG&E has been engaged in an intensive program of esthetic improvement of utility facilities, including undergrounding electric distribution lines, beautifying substations with lower silhouettes and ornamental walls and plantings, designing new type towers, painting gas holders, constructing attractive officers and service centers and other steps. The company has gained national recognition for its leadership among utilities and other industries in conservation, esthetic and enviromental acheivement, but, Sibley noted, steps to improve the enviroment have costs associated with them.

"Most of PG&E's existing thermal power plants burn natural gas as their primary fuel," he said. "Natural gas is the cleanest fuel available in terms of minimizing air pollution. Although some oxides of nitrogen are produced with this fuel, it produces less of these than would any other fuel.

"We have done a great deal, at substantial expense, to reduce the formation of oxides of nitrogen by improving the combustion characteristics of our plants. Although we burn oil less than 10 % of the time, we are replacing the normal fuel oil in our starge tanks with higher cost, low-sulfur, low-ash fuel oil to eliminate air contamination as far as possible."

"Nuclear power plants, on which we will rely chiefly for our future energy requirements, are efficient and safe in operation and they discharge no smog-producing combustion products into the atmosphere. They are highly desirable from an environmental point of view," Sibley said

Seat Belts Help Pregnant Women

The use of lap belt restraint by pregnant travellers in automobiles is recommended in a study recently completed by two researchers of the University of Oklahoma School of Medicine.

The study of Warren M. Crosby, M.D., and J. Paul Costiloe, M.S., of the Departments of Gynecology and Obstertrics and Biostatistics and Epidemiology was based on California Highway Patrol reports involving 441 pregnant victims of automobile accidents.

"Lap belt restraint did not increase the risk of injury or death to either the mother or the fetus, regardless of the severity of the collision," the researchers conclude. "Lap belt restraint acts primarily to prevent ejections and prevention of ejection significantly lowered the death rate for both the mother and the fetus."

In 1966 the CHP agreed to forward copies of automobile collision reports in which one or more of the occupants was identified as pregnant. Each report indicated the type of collision, an estimate of its physical severity, the damaged areas of each automobile and the names of addresses of the driver, passengers and witnesses.

Changes Are Proposed in Insurance

Reduction of the ever-increasing costs of auto insurance is a must and can be accomplished if approached on a total concept basis.

Richard V. Patton, vice president general manager of the Inter-Insurance Bureau of the California State Automobile Association, said recently that, despite the fact that part of the increase in auto insurance rates is caused by inflation, there are several things that can and should be done to lower the admittedly high cost of auto insurance.

First, the number of auto accidents and the severity of these accidents, two prime factors in high insurance costs, must and can be reduced, Patton said. This can be accomplished, he further stated, by improving our highways--using the known engineering safety principles which have been effective in reducing the accident rate on freeways and other modern highways.

Second, the number of accidents can and must be reduced by controlling the drinking driver, Patton said. Alcohol is involved in at least half of all fatal auto accidents and much stricter controls for arresting and convicting drunken drivers must be adopted.

A stricter driver licensing program is also needed, he added, which removes all physically and psychologically unfit to drive from the highways.

"The severity of injuries in automobile collisions must continue to be reduced by improved vehicle design," Patton said. "However, the biggest cost of insurance claims today is not for serious accidents but rather for repairing damage to autos incurred in relatively minor accidents. Tests show that bumpers do not give any protestion even in five and ten mile-per-hour crashes with some cars. The average damage even in such low speed crashes amounts to $300 to $800. The fragility of the cars and the high cost of both parts and labor are responsible for the expense, and the auto manufacturers must produce cars that are more durable in such common collisions and design them so that repairs can be made easily and for less cost."

Patton outlined three other steps which should be taken to reduce the cost of auto insurance.

First, eliminate much of the duplicate payment whereby a person injured in an accident claims benefits under his medical payments coverage, as well as any other policies which he has, and that of the other party involved in the accident.

Second, regulate the contingency fee attorneys charge in auto accident cases. These fees tend to inflate the amount of damages.

Third, remove minor personal injury claims from the courts, settling them on a first-party basis to control the high administrative and legal costs, reducing the cost of coverage.

Patton also discounted the proposal that lower insurance premiums could be achieved if the government took over the auto insurance field, pointing out that government-operated agencies have not achieved any cost savings in those areas where they have taken over from private enterprise.

Environmental Speakers Are Available

The Speaker's Bureau of the Monterey Committee for Environmental Information (MCEL) has announced the availability of qualified scientists equipped to speak on the following issues relevant to science and the environmental crisis: water pollution, pesticides, sewage, urban planning, population environmental costs of power production, environmental costs of weapons technology, noise pollution and endangered species.

The Monterey CEI, an affiliate of the national Scientists' Institute for Public Information, with offices in New York and Monterey, is one of a number of groups of concerned scientists and citizens throughout the country who offer the public the best available information on science-related public issues in a manner unencumbered by personal or political judgement.

While the information is freely available to all, the committee invites an honorarium for its speakers to enable the bureau to operate.

Speaking engagements may be arranged by calling 372-7798, Monday through Friday, from 1-5 p.m. or by writing Monterey CEI, c/o Monterey Peninsula College, 980 Fremont, Monterey, California, 93940.
